DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: on page 2, 3rd line, replace "loosing" with "loosening". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 6 is objected to because of the following informalities: in the 4th line, insert "of" before "spaced". In the last line, replace "relative" with "relatively". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Welch (US 2,776,362) in view of either Seele (US 2,590,896) or Malsbury et al. (US 6,751,852).

Welch discloses a resistance welding machine that includes an actuator 20 that is connected onto a mounting member via a plurality of fasteners 21, such that the mounting member for securing the actuator 20 has a plurality of spaced-apart apertures (arranged in a circle about a center point) through which the fasteners 21 are placed in a removably secured manner to the welding machine, in which the fasteners are threaded and include a narrow shank portion of a smaller diameter and a wider head portion of a larger diameter (column 2, lines 13-39; and Figures 1 and 3). Welch does not disclose the use of a plurality of keyhole-type apertures to engage the fasteners.

However, Seele discloses a locking device that includes a plurality of circumferentially spaced keyhole slots 18 (keyhole apertures) that include an enlarged end 19 and a narrow portion 20, such that the keyhole slots are advantageous for aligning and subsequently locking the components together (column 1, lines 11-43; column 2, lines 2-10 and 35-55; column 3, lines 1-55; and Figures 1-6).

In addition, Malsbury et al. disclose a vessel having a lock plate, in which the lock plate 400 includes a plurality of circumferentially spaced keyhole slots 404 that are advantageous for alignment and securing of flanged components (abstract; column 2, lines 59-67; column 3, lines 1-17; column 5, lines 36-55; column 8, lines 14-45; and Figures 6 and 11).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the applicants' invention was made to modify the securing system for fastening an actuator to a resistance welding machine, as disclosed by Welch, by using a plurality of keyhole-type apertures to engage the fastener, as taught individually by Seele and Malsbury et al., in order to align and lock the components together (Seele; column 1, lines 18-35; and column 2, lines 2-20), and in order to align and secure flanged components (Malsbury et al.; column 3, lines 2-17; column 5, lines 46-55; and column 8, lines 14-45).

Conclusion

- 6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The Mark and Dolgas et al. references are also cited in PTO-892.
